

A Less Taxing Way to Own Precious Metals

The Sprott Physical Gold Trust, Sprott Physical Silver Trust, Sprott Physical Gold and Silver Trust, and Sprott Physical Platinum and Palladium Trust (NYSE Arca: PHYS, PSLV, CEF and SPPP) let you own physical precious metals in a convenient and secure way that has potentially favorable tax advantages versus owning the metals directly or ETFs.

	Sprott Physical Bullion Trusts [†]	Precious Metals: Coins, Bullion and ETFs
Tax Treatment if held over 1 year	15% or 20%* Taxed at Capital Gains Tax Rate	28% Taxed at Collectibles Tax Rate

[†] Requires the timely filing of a QEF form with your tax return.

* 15% or 20% long-term capital gains tax rate depending on filing status and income levels.

How are precious metals taxed? The IRS considers precious metals to be collectibles like art, rare books and fine wine. Provided you hold it for more than 1 year, the capital gains tax on your net gain from selling a collectible is 28%. This level of tax is considerably higher than the tax rate on most net capital gains, which is an average of 15% for most taxpayers, according to the IRS¹. If you sell a collectible in less than one year, the proceeds will be taxed as ordinary income.

Special U.S. federal income tax rules apply to holders of the Sprott Physical Bullion Trusts because they are classified as Passive Foreign Investment Corporations (PFICs) by the IRS. If a U.S. non-corporate holder makes a timely QEF election each year by filing IRS form 8621 with his or her federal income tax return, it will generally mitigate the otherwise adverse U.S. federal income tax consequences of owning precious metals via coins, bullion or ETFs. Investors should always consult with a tax accountant or adviser regarding their particular situation.
